

陶芸

A collection of six circular ceramic tiles, likely from a traditional East Asian collection, arranged in a 3x2 grid. Each tile features a distinct design: the top-left tile has a wide, ornate border with a repeating floral or cloud motif; the top-right tile displays a bold, wavy, zigzag pattern; the middle-left tile features a delicate, winding floral or vine design; the middle-right tile has a vertical, textured pattern resembling stylized brush strokes or a landscape feature; the bottom-left tile shows a series of concentric circles or rings; and the bottom-right tile is inscribed with large, expressive Chinese calligraphy characters.
